Assignment 2

Alex Siebenaler

Management

With my MBTI report, being ENTJ, I feel like there is a lot of upsides for me. Some strengths with this come being a great leader. I can take charge of situations very easily and am able to lead a group. I have strong leadership skills. I am also very confident and ambitious in my decision-making skills. Some challenges I may face with my specific type are being overworked and trying too hard to take the lead in situations. With this, I have had personal experiences with my MBTI type coming out in real world experiences. One of the best examples I can think of for this strength in taking charge is in my leadership roles. In high-school and college I have stepped up into roles that give me leadership. For example, I was a sports team captain, an NHS officer, and a leader in a few other clubs as well. Last year, being my first year in college, I joined the honors program to push myself and became an RHA president for our hall for more leadership opportunity. I really love taking charge in situations with groups to try and push everyone, as well as help a team maximize success. On the downside, I tend to overwork myself. I find myself getting a lot on my plate at once, joining multiple clubs, working, taking maximum loads, and also trying to keep my body in good shape. I almost thrive on overworking myself, but it also leads to challenges with stress and micromanaging. In school, sometimes this looks like putting in less effort in some classes or having poor study habits due to being crammed on time. Also, sometimes in situations where it is a small group and no leadership is necessary, I try to take a leadership role. This is due to my drive for success, and I also do not like it when people are doing things inefficiently. It is important to me that things get done in an efficient way and correctly, but sometimes it is important, especially in this small group that leadership is not necessary for order to form. For me, my MBTI type is shown very well in my personal life, and my academic life. It is gonna be crucial to my success, as well as for other people's success to make sure to harness all their strengths and use them to the best of their ability.

Team Dynamics Analysis Report

Team Name: Team 10

1. Team Overview

Team 10 has a mix of Judging (ENTJ, ENFJ, ESTJ, ISFP, ISTP) and Perceiving types (ESFP), with a leaning toward structure, execution, and people awareness.

Patterns observed:

- High Empathy & Harmony: Strong focus on understanding others and creating relational cohesion.
- Strong Executing Strengths (Achiever, Discipline): The team values getting things done and following through.
- Strategic Thinking (Ideation, Strategic) is present in multiple members, ensuring vision and creativity.
- Influencing Domain Gap: No one has major Influencing strengths (Command, Woo, Communication, etc.), which may limit external advocacy and promotion of ideas.

2. Individual Cognitive Function Analysis

Alex – ENTJ (Te–Ni–Se–Fi)

- Communication: Direct, structured, efficiency-focused.
- Decision-making: Logic-driven, future-oriented.
- Working style: Prefers structure, long-term vision, and execution.
- Stress response: Becomes overly controlling, impatient, or dismissive of feelings.

Bailey – ISFP (Fi–Se–Ni–Te)

- Communication: Gentle, values authenticity and harmony.
- Decision-making: Guided by personal values, supported by sensory detail.
- Working style: Flexible, hands-on, thrives in environments that allow creativity.
- Stress response: Withdraws, becomes overwhelmed by criticism or imposed structure.

Maggie – ESFP (Se–Fi–Te–Ni)

- Communication: Energetic, people-focused, concrete.
- Decision-making: Driven by present realities and values.
- Working style: Thrives in dynamic, people-centered tasks.
- Stress response: Becomes impulsive or scattered if overloaded.

Ashley – ENFJ (Fe–Ni–Se–Ti)

- Communication: Warm, persuasive, tuned into group dynamics.
- Decision-making: Balances vision (Ni) with harmony (Fe).
- Working style: Inspires others, builds consensus, drives group goals.
- Stress response: May overextend emotionally or micromanage group harmony.

Bryer – ISTP (Ti–Se–Ni–Fe)

- Communication: Precise, practical, sometimes reserved.
- Decision-making: Logic-driven, focused on real-world mechanics.
- Working style: Independent, hands-on, problem-solving oriented.
- Stress response: Withdraws, becomes blunt or disengaged when overstructured.

Thibaut – ESTJ (Te–Si–Ne–Fi)

- Communication: Structured, directive, fact-based.
- Decision-making: Practical, tradition-anchored but forward-planning.
- Working style: Efficient, systematic, thrives in organized environments.
- Stress response: Becomes rigid, overly controlling, or dismissive of alternative views.

3. StrengthsFinder Domain Analysis

Team Strength Distribution:

- Executing (Achiever, Discipline) → Very strong across the team. Reliability and follow-through are a strength.
- Relationship Building (Empathy, Harmony, Connectedness) → Strong presence; ensures emotional intelligence and team cohesion.
- Strategic Thinking (Strategic, Ideation) → Strong; multiple members can generate ideas and long-term plans.
- Influencing → Weak/absent; potential struggles in advocacy, persuasion, or promoting ideas externally.

4. Communication Strategies

- Te-dominant types (Alex ENTJ, Thibaut ESTJ): Communicate with efficiency, directness, and data. Others should present concise, actionable proposals.
- Fi/Fe users (Bailey ISFP, Maggie ESFP, Ashley ENFJ): Value authenticity and emotional resonance. Others should show respect for feelings and motivations.
- Ti user (Bryer ISTP): Values precision. Others should explain logical consistency and give space for independent analysis.
- Best practice: Alternate between structured, agenda-driven discussions (for Te types) and open, inclusive dialogues (for Fe/Fi types).

5. Optimal Working Styles & Project Roles

Ideation phase (brainstorming):

- Lead: Ashley (ENFJ – vision + consensus) and Bailey (ISFP – creative authenticity).
- Support: Alex & Thibaut (structure emerging ideas).

Planning phase (strategy building):

- Lead: Alex (ENTJ) and Thibaut (ESTJ) – efficiency and organization.
- Support: Ashley & Maggie for people impact.

Execution phase (getting things done):

- Lead: Alex, Thibaut, Maggie (high Achiever/Discipline).
- Support: Bryer (hands-on problem solving).

Review phase (reflection/learning):

- Lead: Bailey (values-driven reflection) and Bryer (logical critique).
- Support: Ashley (group harmony and feedback culture).

6. Conflict Resolution

- Te-dominant members (Alex, Thibaut) may clash with Fi/Fe members (Bailey, Maggie, Ashley) if efficiency overrides values.
- Resolution strategy: Create structured debates where logic and values are both voiced. Assign Ashley as mediator when emotions rise.

7. Stress Management & Caution Areas

- Team stress triggers:
  - Overcommitment (high Achiever drive).
  - Interpersonal conflict (strong Empathy/Harmony presence).
  - Lack of external recognition (Influencing gap).
- Strategies:
  - Rotate leadership roles to prevent burnout.
  - Regularly acknowledge accomplishments.
  - Use structured check-ins to balance productivity and morale.

8. Addressing Domain Gaps (Influencing)

- Assign Ashley (ENFJ) as spokesperson for external communication.
- Rotate presentation responsibilities to build influencing capacity.
- Use external advocates (mentors, advisors) to supplement the gap.

9. Team Meeting Structure

- Opening: Brief check-in round (relationship builders thrive).
- Core agenda: Clear objectives, action items (Te types thrive).
- Creative space: Time for open brainstorming (Ideation + Ni users thrive).
- Closing: Reflection + appreciation (Empathy/Harmony users thrive).

10. Key Success Factors

- Strengths to leverage:
  - Execution power (Achiever, Discipline).
  - Relationship cohesion (Empathy, Harmony).
  - Strategic foresight (Strategic, Ideation).
- Challenges to manage:
  - Potential overfocus on internal harmony at expense of external influence.
  - Risk of overloading high Achievers.
  - Efficiency vs. values clashes between Te- and Fi/Fe-dominant members.
- Success formula:
  - Use ENTJ/ESTJ leadership for structure.
  - Use ENFJ/ISFP/ESFP for team harmony.
  - Use ISTP for hands-on problem solving.
  - Supplement external influencing gap with intentional role assignments.

✅ Summary:
Team 10 is a high-execution, people-conscious, strategically sharp group with a strong balance between logic-driven leadership (Te types) and relationship-centered support (Fe/Fi types). The main challenge lies in external influence and advocacy, which can be offset by leveraging Ashley's communication skills and assigning spokesperson roles intentionally.
